

Village culture is the future, but... Who are my friends?

First the bad news: in the next 5 years 90 out of 100 people will die. This is no coincidence, but physically necessary to save 10 out of 100 people. Why? population explosion. The number of people worldwide has been exploding for at least 200 years. There are exactly two ways this trend can continue: 1. Further growth to 10,000 million and collapse to zero. 2. Stop at 8,000 million and collapse at 100 million. How will people die? Power outage, no heating, no water, no food...three days later, anarchy reigns. When? Winter 2022.

Do not you believe me? Good for you. Apparently you are blind to my truths and will reject the rest of my text as babble, slang, esotericism, jokes... Please stop reading and pass the text on, or leave it somewhere. The more people read my text, the sooner we will know if my theory is right or wrong.

But now the good news. I have an idea (a vision, a dream) for (re)building village culture:

Each village has 144 people (Dunbar's Number) = 9 x 16 people. Each village has a distance to the neighboring villages (otherwise it would be a district). Each village has self-sufficiency and self-defense, so a mixture of eco-village and Shaolin monastery, permaculture and martial arts, farmers and soldiers.

Balance: Each village is balanced: 72 men and 72 women. 72 young and 72 old. So justice in the distribution of gender and age. This justice does not come by itself (nature is coincidence), but must be worked out and cultivated (culture).

Example: Village A has 100 men and 44 women and Village B has 44 men and 100 women. The distance to balance is $72 - 100 = -28$ men for Village A and $72 - 44 = +28$ men for Village B. Solution: Village A sends 28 men to Village B and Village B sends 28 women to Village A. Result: Each Village has 72 men and 72 women.

The same is true even on a small scale: Family A has 3 men and 1 woman and Family B has 1 man and 3 women. Solution: We take the two small families and build a large family with 4 men and 4 women.

"No! Everything stays here as it is!" Ok Andrew. Good for you. When a person resists well-intentioned advice, it often has personal reasons. Then it is not "What" someone says that counts, but "Who" says something. Zarathustra: "I am not the mouth for these ears." Real friends. spiritual closeness. spirit kinship. soulmates. Sympathy. Compatibility.

Which people are compatible? My compatibility map:

How does this map work? Each circle is a person, so we see 16 people from above. When two people are right next to each other, then they are compatible. When two people are further apart, they are spirit enemies (mental distance) and need mutual friends in order to live together. When such spirit enemies come together directly, there is always distrust, disbelief, misunderstandings, arguments.

What is happening at the edge of the map? The map is simply repeated, like a stamp, or like a tile pattern. So line 5 is: F1L M2L F4L M3L.

Group dynamics: My map is made up of pairs and groups of four. Some groups of four are connected by squares ("flow circles"), other groups of four are connected by crosses ("span crosses"). Each group of four has son mother daughter father = MS FL FS ML.

Partner exchange: Each group of four has two states. The question is: who is connected to whom? In one state the couples are of the same age (parent couple and child couple), in the other state the couples are of the same sex (male couple and female couple). The groups of four should always "oscillate" back and forth between these two states, information flows in circles.

Where is this map from? experience and symmetry. I taught myself psychology, especially personality psychology, where you "put people in boxes". So I figured out my own personality (type 1 with subtype 4) and typed my acquaintances and friends... and eventually I ended up on this map. The rest of the map is made up of symmetry: striped patterns and hexagonal patterns.

I hope this map is right for everyone. How can we test this? 1. Observe: who is who, who are friends, who are enemies? 2. Change: Connect friends, separate enemies.

What does this theory bring in the here and now? Building extended families: You take several small groups and you build two large groups: The "right" group realizes my map (16 or 8 or 4 people), and the "left" group ("control group") includes everyone who don't fit in with the right group because some types are too many or too few.

Psychology: Our brains also have gender and age. (Two Factor Model of Personality. Carl Jung, Hans Eysenck, Four Elements, Four Temperaments...) My translation: Types 14 = male brain. Types 23 = female brain. Types 13 = young brain. Types 24 = old brain. Type 1234 = Son-Mother-Daughter-Father-Brain.

In a village of 144 people, the brains must also be evenly distributed: 72 male and 72 female brains, 72 young and 72 old brains.

Realists and idealists: The realist says: "Children cannot choose their parents." The idealist says: "Yes, but why not? Why are children only allowed to decide when it's easy and have to follow when it's important?" (Fair Weather Freedom) This conflict continues: "Students cannot choose their teachers." - "Yes, but why not?" - "Workers cannot choose their bosses." - "Yes, but why not?"

Reading is the most important thing you learn in school. You can then learn everything else yourself. To learn you have to read actively: Underline important words (it's your text). Write down thoughts immediately. Read the sentences you didn't understand again. Decode words you don't understand. Take regular breaks (moving or lying down). But reading is also subjective: Types 24 want to read "linearly", i.e. read through exactly once from aaah to zett. Type 13 read more chaotically, are more easily distracted.

Waiting for Nothing: Throughout our lives we are trained to be patient. Stay seated, focus, persevere. And then? Then it's a new day and we're back to square one. Problem? Our important problems remain unsolved and we waste our time on simple problems. Who wants to "save the world" when you can calculate "one plus one" and look busy doing it. So you can avoid work in the hope that someone will do it (but in the end no one will). Solution? delegate to friends. Everyone needs friends (quantity), and everyone needs the Four Types in their circle of friends (quality). In order for the four types to be compatible, they must be in the right body.

Four types: The four personality types in different language areas:

Objectives: dissemination and experimentation. Both goals block each other, so I have to do both at the same time. Everyone can help, everyone is allowed to help. Example: Print 1000 flyers (50 EUR) and distribute / send them somewhere.
